

RONIT BARAS, Principal, Be Happy in Life

Ronit Baras is a mother, world traveller, educator, life coach, community developer, journalist, author, public speaker social activist. She specialises in emotional and social intelligence, with over 33 years of experience in coaching, teaching, presenting and writing. Through her presentations, workshops and writing, Ronit delivers inspiring messages of love, respect, acceptance, motivation and determination.

Ronit is the co-creator of the Be Happy in LIFE coaching programs.

She has been writing for 35 years and is the author of five books: Be Special Be Yourself for Teenagers, In the Outback with Jasmine Banks, Motivating kids, Reflections and The Will. Her blog "Family Matters" www.ronitbaras.com is a great practical resource for parents and teachers.

Ronit is highly involved in community building. She was the state director of the Together for Humanity Foundation, for 12 years. Was the school's program director of the Global Learning Center and she worked with many organizations around Australia to increase social intelligence.

For her community involvement, she has been nominated for the International Women's Day Peace award by the Women's Federation for World Peace and twice for the Australian of the Year.

Ronit currently lives in Brisbane (Australia) with her family. She enjoys a long and happy relationship with her high school boyfriend (and husband) and their three wonderful kids.

